

HOW TO SUCCEED IN ECON 110

Biggest Tip: Go to the Economics Lab

The Economics Lab in B090 JFSB is your primary source of help. Here, TAs are available to answer your questions. Click link icon for details.

TUTORING

Y-Serve	TAs	Online
Volunteer tutors are available to schedule with at: tutoring.byu.edu	Your TAs have scheduled lab hours where you can meet with them one on one	Khan Academy
Open Lab	Professors	Hire
Room B090 in the JFSB has an open lab for help on homework and concepts	Your professors offer office hours to help students. Email them for extra availability and help	There is a tutor list available for hire. Contact economics@byu.edu for this resource

EXAM HELP

- Attend your TA's review sessions for each section throughout the course
- Meet with your TAs or go to the lab to clarify your questions
- Be attentive in class, study your materials before and after class

GENERAL TIPS

- Review your materials before and after class
- Create a study group to discuss concepts
- Ask questions to your TAs and Instructors
- Keep yourself as healthy as possible to foster your best learning
- Devote 3-4 hours of work and study per credit hour to this course. Since the course is 3 credit hours, this means you should study for at least 6 hours per week in Fall and Winter, and 12 hours per week during Spring and Summer.
- Stay on top of your deadlines, plan ahead for when you are going to complete your assignments